On Thursday evening, May 11th, members of the Scarsdale community came out in full force to Support the 'Dale and Scarsdale Edgemont Family Counseling Service at their annual gala entitled It Takes a Village.

Event co-chairs Elise Flagg and Denise Koslowsky did an excellent job as this year's event took on an innovative form, featuring a showcase of wonderful items from local Scarsdale stores. In addition to cocktails, dinner and dancing at the Scarsdale Golf Club, It Takes a Village featured a fashion show where teens and adults from the Scarsdale community modeled clothing, shoes and accessories from some of our favorite area stores. Additional funds were raised via a silent auction filled with donations from local businesses.

SFCS staff and Board of Directors were thrilled with the outpouring of support from within the community. From the event sponsors, to the local merchants, to the members of the community who served as models - Scarsdale has shown how committed they are to the village as a whole and the well being of all who live within its borders.

Scarsdale Edgemont Family Counseling Service has been providing services to those who live and work within the greater Scarsdale area since 1920. SFCS is a voluntary, not-for-profit counseling agency that strives to be a comfortable place for families, couples and individuals to go for support with the normal problems of daily living as well as in a crisis. Their mission is to be a center for family growth and learning within the community by offering family life education, stimulating social thinking and inspiring action toward better social conditions.

If you would like to find out more information about SFCS, and the important work they do within our community, or to make a donation, please call 914-723-3281 or visit their website at: www.sfcsinc.org.
